Nazi Pasts Haunt Scheel, Carstens

BONN, Nov. 12 (WP) — Walter Scheel, president of West Germany, and Karl Carstens, speaker of the lower house of parliament, have had their reputations tarnished by recent re-minders of their membership in the Nazi Party during World War II. Both men are considered potential candidates for the pres-idency when Mr. Scheel's current term expires next May. A spokesman for Mr. Scheel confirmed press reports yester-day that he had been a member of the party between 1942 and the end of the war while serving in the Luftwaffe.

The day before, another newspaper reported, and it was confirmed, that Mr. Carstens had been a Nazi Party member beginning in 1940. Mr. Carstens is a major figure on the right wing of the conservative opposition Christian Democratic Party and is being touted as a leading candidate for the presidency.

A few months ago, Christian Democratic state Gov. Hans Filbinger, who also was being suggested as a presidential candidate, was not only tarnished by news reports of his Nazi back-ground but was eventually driven from office when his behavior as a military judge during the era

In all cases, West Germany's highly politicized press has played a role, with a liberal religious weekly first raising Mr. Carsten's past and the conservative papers then turning their attention to Mr. Scheel, more in self-defense than in repudiation. There were, at one time, 10.7

11 Killed in Iran Clashes; Chief of Opposition Jailed

By Joseph Fitchett

PARIS, Nov. 12 (IHT) - At least 11 persons were killed and scores wounded yesterday when Iranian troops clashed with demonstrators in Iran's strikebound southern oil region, the official Iranian news agency said today.

The violence coincided with the arrest of Iran's most prominent opposition politician, Karim Sanjabi, who was jailed in Tehran just before a scheduled press conference in which he reportedly had planned to announce that his National Front Opposition Coalition would refuse to cooperate with the military government that was imposed last week. He apparently also was to have demanded the abdication of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi.

Government Shows Muscle

The crackdown appeared to be part of the government's policy of compromise. New York Times correspondent Nicholas Gage, reporting from Tehran, quoted a Cabinet minister as saying that the govern-ment wanted to show enough muscle to convince the opposition to settle for a coalition government and free elections.

The official quoted by The New York Times claimed that Ayatoliah Khomeini had convinced Mr. Sanjabi and the National Front that the revolt in Iran was moving "so fast that they don't have to settle for shared power now because they can have it all if they wait."

The phone on the table next to the shah's armchair rang every two or three minutes. He apologized to me for each interruption, then leaned forward, listening intently and stroking his thin graying hair. The new premier, Gen. Gholam Reza Azhari, the military governor of Tehran, the chief of intelligence, and others were calling the shah on a direct line at Niyavaran Palace. Judging from the monarch's demeanor and his instructions, the reports were grim. At one point, he volunteered that the new government had failed in its latest attempt

Foreigners in Iran Feel Isolated

By Youssef M. Ibrahim

TEHRAN, Nov. 12 (NYT) -Stones have been thrown at some foreigners in the quiet streets of northern Tehran, and Iranian youths have pressed leaflets into the hands of others advising them to "stop supporting the Shah" or "go home"

These have been among the causes of a rising feeling of isolation among the more than 110,000 foreigners in Iran, who include 40,000 U.S. citizens, since the turbulent demonstrations against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi last weekend brought the imposition of military rule.

Families Ordered to Leave

So far, one U.S. company, Control Data Corp., has ordered its employees dependents out of Iran. And sources at Bell Helicopter Co. said that almost 35 percent of the company's U.S. employees had sent their wives and children home.

The isolation of the foreign community here has been heightened by several things. Schools were closed by the new military govern-ment, banks were looted and burned and telephone workers have stayed home, halting international calls. The curfew has severely curtailed evening social gatherings, vir-tually the only form of entertain-

Moreover, the strike by refinery workers has created a shortage of gasoline, and the grounding of Iran Air by the strike restricted travel inside Iran and greatly reduced in-ternational traffic. Newspapers were not publishing and censorship of radio and television left foreign-ers feeling virtually cut off from the rest of the world.

Daily bulletins from the U.S. Embassy, distributed through the heads of companies, have become the only form of communication. One bulletin warned against going to bazaars or campuses, where not-ing has broken out. "It puts a damper on things," one American woman said as she sipped a beer at the country club.

Hostility Increases

More alarming, however, was the rising hostility of Iranians. A British secretary said that an Iranian colleague had an argument with her at the office and told her to pack up and "go back to England where you belong." And U.S. technicians of the Electronic Data Systems Co.
of Dallas were roughed up by striking Iranian workers when they showed up at the Ministry of Health, where they were working.

Some U.S. executives say that they had seen the hostilities coming. "Many Iranians feel the foreign companies are not utilizing the full potential of the Iranian workers and tend to opt for using expa-triates instead," said William Hick-len of the Chicago Bridge and Iron Co. here. He predicted that the Iranian government would severely restrict work permits for foreigners.

It appeared to be a major concession by Mr. Chamoun, who had insisted in the past on completely dis-arming the Palestinians in Lebanon and redistributing them among other Arab countries

Mr. Chamoun's statement was issued after a meeting between Leba-nese Christian leaders and two prominent Palestinians with ties to Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization.
It was the first face-to-face meet-

The two Palestinians, Professor Walid Khalidi and construction millionaire Hassib Sabbagh, who were used by Mr. Arafat as emis-saries to the Lebanese Christians during the civil war, crossed into the Christian-held zone of Beirut on Friday for the meeting with Mr. Chamoun and Phalange leader Pierre Gemayal - leaders of the two largest Christian militias.

Both Christian and PLO sources confirmed the meeting.

No other details were immediately available about the meeting. The PLO has always maintained it opposed any permanent resettlement of Palestinians in Lebanon. However, Zuhair Mohsen, a Palestinian guerrilla leader supported by Syria, later said the two Palestinians who attended the talks did not represent the PLO.

Synthetic Fuel Supplies Feasible, Engineer Says

By Thomas O'Toole

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (WP)

There is no reason why the United States cannot produce large quantities of synthetic fuels from coal and oil shale in the arid west if the plants are designed to recycle their water supplies, according to a Massachuserts Institute of Technology engineer.

"Every design I've seen of a synthetic fuel plant makes no allowance for reuse and recycle of the water needed to cool the plant down and flush away the mess the water needed to cool the plant down and flush away the mess the plants create," Dr. Ronald Prob-stein told the National Academy of Engineering last week. By recycle and reuse, you cut water consumption to one-tenth what the designs say you need."

Say you need.

Synthetic fuel production has been controversial in the west, where many people fear such production would take water needed for agriculture and commerce.

Dr. Probstein said the United States could produce from coal and shale the synthetic equivalent of 6 million barrels of oil a day, almost as much as it imports today.

"I'm talking about plants that would produce the equivalent of I million barrels a day in each of the fine coal-bearing regions and in the single oil-shale region of the country." Dr. Probstein said. "Even in the most arid coal regions of the west like New Mexico, these

He insisted that even the most expensive techniques of water recy-cle and reuse would increase the cost of the plant by less than 10 percent. He said plants to extract synthetic liquids from coal could be built to recycle and reuse water at an added cost of 5 percent.

His calculations showed that a plant producing 100,000 barrels of liquid synthetic fuel could do so us-ing no more than 10 million gallons of water a day, provided the plant recycled its waste water and reused its clean water.

You could go as low as five million gallons of water a day in some synthetic liquids plants," Dr. Prob-stein said. "Most estimates have synfuel plants that size using 100 million gallons of water."

Water is essential in the extraction of synthetic liquid and gas fuels from coal and shale, partly to cool the furnaces and retorts needed to heat the coal and parily to flush away the wastes built up dur-ing the extraction process. More water is needed to extract gas from coal because water is used to make hydrogen during the gasification

The six regions that Dr. Probstein discussed are the arid oil-shale region of Colorado, the arid coal regions of New Mexico, North Dakota, Wyoming and Montana and the humid cool regions of Illinois and Appalachia.

Uganda-Tanzania War May Test Kenya

By John Darnton

NAIROBI (NYT) — Judging from the scale of combat and the prize involved — a small slice of not especially fertile land — the fighting between Uganda and Tanzania over their boundary west of Lake Victoria could be just another one of Africa's obscure bush wars. one of Africa's obscure bush wars. But the implications of the conflict are greater than that Regionally, the squabble presents the first foreign policy crisis for the untested Kenyan government of Daniel Arap Moi, who became president after Jomo Kenyatta's death on July 22.

Kenya has been on less than friendly terms with Uganda and Tanzania countries it was linked as

Under Mr. Kenyatta, Kenya carried on vendettas at various times with each of its neighbors but essentially stood aloof from their quarrels and avoided being drawn into a two-against-one alli-

President Moi has offered to mediate the current war.
Instead, Tanzania has called upon Kenya to cut off Uganda's overland oil supplies, a move that would quickly paralyze Uganda's war effort. The threat of an oil cutoff is a potent weapon. Two years ago, when Kenya cut off oil in a row with President Idi Amin of Uganda over unpaid bills, the Ugandans were quickly brought to their knees and flew to Nairobi to negotiate a new agreement with only an hour's supply of fuel remaining.

At the moment, Uganda needs all the oil it can get. Three U.S. companies — Caltex, Esso and Mobil - stopped distribution two and a half weeks ago to comply with the United States trade embargo, depriving Uganda of about a third its customary supply. Gasoline in Uganda is now restricted to military and government vehicles.

Furthermore, Tanzania has a strong bargaining chip to offer Kenya in exchange — the reopening of the Kenyan-Tanzanian border, closed 20 months ago, which would open a vast southern market for Kenya's exports in processed foods and light industrial goods.

White Farmers In Zambia Ask Guerrilla Curb

NGWERERE, Zambia, Nov. 12 (Reuters) — Angry white farmers today threatened to cease operations or even burn down their farms unless Joshua Nkomo's Rhodesian nationalist guerrillas were moved out of their area. The demand came at a meeting of about 70 farmers and members of their families in this dusty rail stop 12 miles north of Lusaka, after a series of abductions of white farmers. The farmers, part of some 300 white commercial farmers in Zambia, who say they produce 60 per cent of the country's food, blamed the guerrillas for the kid-

Crime Rises by 25% After Casino In Atlantic City, N.J., Is Opened

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Nov. 12 (NYT) - Street crime here rose 25 percent during the first two months of casino gambling, according to public safety officials. The sharp increase came at a time when crime was decreasing throughout New Jersey.

Public Safety Commissioner Edwin Roth said on Friday that the increase had resulted from the rise in visitors since the Resorts International casino opened on May 26.

The deputy police chief, Joseph Allmond said that this situation would worsen as more casinos opened. So far, there is only one, but it quickly became the busiest in the world, grossing more than $100

Almost half of the city's additional crimes this year came in June and July, the first two full months of operation of the casino. The largest increase was in nonviolent crimes, such as larcenies and car thefts, although murders, assaults and armed robberies rose.

The Atlantic City police force was increased by 44 to a total of 406 officers in anticipation of the problem, making it the largest force per capita in the state. The year-round population is 43,000.

House Investigators Sift King Assassination Theories

By T.R. Reid

WASHINGTON, Nov. 12 (WP) - The House Select Committee on Assassinations has begun a painstaking series of hearings to explore whether the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., was the product of official or underworld conspiracy.

The committee's chief counsel, Robert Blakey, said that the public hearings this month will examine 10 facets of the conspiracy hypothesis - including lapses in police security on the day that Dr. King was shot and the source of funds that paid for extensive travels by James Earl Ray, the robber convicted of the killing - in the months before and after the assassination.

The hearings will constitute the second round of the committee's investigation into the King killing. Last August, the committee spent three days questioning Ray, who now denies that he shot Dr. King, and tore holes in Ray's complicated

In effect, the committee has embarked on a tedious game of chess with assassination buffs. This is necessary, Mr. Blakey said, because these unanswered questions weave a sinister story." As set forth by Mr. Blakey, the tale begins with Ray's escape from a Missouri prison 11 months before Dr. King's murder.

"Ray is broken out of prison, either as assassin or as patsy," Mr. Blakey said, summarizing the elements of the conspiracy theory. "He is given financial support, plastic surgery, a car and a gun, while arrangements are made for a ticket out of the country and a false passport. Meanwhile, Dr. King is lured back to Memphis. . . his security is withdrawn, and he is felled by one deadly shot. The escape of the assassin is facilitated. . Ray is caught, convicted or framed, but

When Dr. King arrived in Memphis the day before his death, he was given a four-man security detail by the Memphis police department. That detail was terminated the next day, an hour before the shooting.

Frank Holloman, who was the city's director of fire and safety in 1968, testified that the squad was sent home because Dr. King said that he did not want police protection. Mr. Holloman, who said re-peatedly that he could not recall the details of the situation, said that Dr. King protested the security arrangement in Memphis.

Force Is Withdrawn

The next day, according to committee evidence, the leader of the security detail told his superiors that Dr. King's group had tried to lose its police escort on a drive through the city. The officer's superiors then told the officer to disband the security force, the evidence showed.

The committee also questioned Edward Redditt, a black former Memphis police detective who was assigned to surveillance of Dr.

King, but was relieved of the job shortly before the fatal shot was

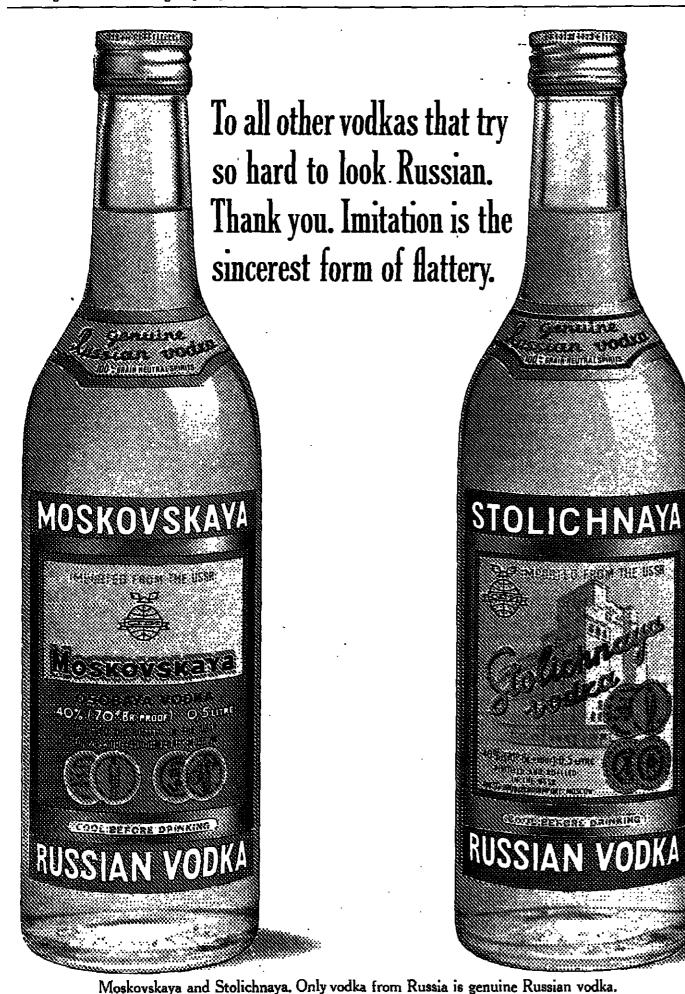

Mr. Redditt figures prominantly in a book by Ray's lawyer, Mark Lane, that lays out much of the evidence for Mr. Lane's claim that Ray was framed. Mr. Lane's book says that Mr. Redditt was the Memphis policeman responsible for guarding Dr. King and raises questions about the officer's last-minute removal from his post.

In his testimony on Friday, Mr. Redditt said that his mission was to spy on Dr. King rather than protect him. Mr. Redditt said that he was removed from his surveillance post for his own protection, because black groups had made threats on his life. Mr. Redditt said that he had been misinterpreted or misquoted in interviews in which be was said to have claimed he was in charge of Dr. King's security in ALTAMIRA, Brazil, Nov. 12 (WP) — Brazilian President Ernes-to Geisel is expected to sign into law this month a government-prepared Indian Emancipation Decree that many anthropologists, missionaries and other experts charge would deprive the country's esti-mated 200,000 Indians of the protection and special status they currently enjoy and would leave them open to exploitation.

Such an action would mark an abrupt turnabout in Brazil's attitude toward its indigenous community, which is estimated to have numbered between 2 and 5 million when the first Portuguese explorers arrived in the early 1500s. Although the full text of the new

Another Kaiser study showed that users of oral contraceptives had a higher rate of cancer of the uterine cervix than nonusers.

Dr. Savitri Ramcharan, research director of the contraceptive studies, said that they were among the most extensive to date on the effects of the birth-control pill. She called the results "suggestive but far from definitive.

Dr. Donald Austin, chief of the California Tumor Registry in Berkeley, an agency of the state Health Department, said the Wal-nut Creek findings "could not be ignored," particularly in view of a 79 percent increase in the incidence malignant melanoma among women in the San Francisco Bay area from 1970 to 1975.

Malignant melanoma occurs when skin pigment cells reproduce at an abnormally rapid rate. Pigment cell reproduction is controlled by the pituitary gland, which also controls ovulation in women. In addition to blocking ovulation, estrogen and progesterone, the major ingredients of birth-control pills, stimulate the growth of skin pig-ment cells. A darkening of skin patches is a common side effect of oral contraceptive use, particularly in fair-skinned women.

On the Brink in Nicaragua

Under the guise of a "mediation" mission set up by the Organization of American States, the United States is conducting in Nicaragua a bold and unprecedented political intervention pointed at securing President Anastasio Somoza's resignation. The purpose is not always stated so baldly, but President Carter dropped discretion the other day and said the aim was "to set up a government that will have the full support of the Nicaraguan people." A popular government is one without President Somoza, the dictator who is heir to the dynasty put in place by American Marines in the 1930s and who rules by

Now, many Nicaraguans in opposition know of the history of American support for the Somoza dynasty and of the American fear that replacement of the current Somoza could produce "another Castro." That is President Somoza's high card. The Nicaraguan opposition has broad popular standing and an apparent commitment to a democratic process, and we can understand its suspicions about American policy. But we think the opposition should pay close attention to Mr. Carter's words, to the economic pressure the United States, among others, is applying, and to the potential of the political process that American (and Guatemalan and Dominican) diplomats are trying to create. Nicaraguans should not assume the "mediation" mission cannot possibly produce a better result for Nicaragua than the likeliest alternative - further bloodshed, chaos and econom-

To such urgings, the opposition customarily responds that any amount of suffering and loss is acceptable while the Somozas remain: They must go. Here is the hardest part of the mediators' task. They must overcome the impatience and political inexperience of a diverse opposition, while convincing a clever and arrogant President Somoza that his staying means catastrophe for country and family alike. With Mr. Somoza so far refusing to resign and the guerrillas threatening a new offensive, Nicaragua is on the brink.

The Carter administration came to office eager to put intervention, even of a political sort, behind, and to let Latins sort out their own affairs. It also had a commitment to democratic ideals - and to the avoidance of undue turbulence. First in the Dominican Republic, where it successfully managed to save an endangered democratic election, and now in Nicaragua, the administration has found it necessary to fudge its commitment to nonintervention in order to pursue its other political goals. The policy is ambiguous, yet, we believe, promising. We hope Nicaraguans give it the chance to work.

Paychecks in U.S. and Abroad

The gradual, powerful trends in the world's economic history generally go unnoticed amidst the crises of the moment. But that is not a bad reason to try to take a longer perspective. There are a lot of ways to measure prosperity and, in industrial countries, one useful indicator is the compensation paid to production workers. By the middle of 1978, in a comparison of 10 rich industrial countries, American workers' compensation ranked fifth. The figures are computed by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, which accompanies them with a warning that they have certain limitations. The term "compensation" includes not only what is in the pay envelope, but the withheld taxes and the fringe benefits. Since taxes and benefits vary widely from one country to another, it is impossible to compare them exactly. The figures are all expressed below in U.S. dollars; the statisticians made computations for each country in its own currency, then translated them at the exchange rates that prevailed last July. But if you will accept it as an approximation, the following brief table gives you a fairly good idea of average compensation for production workers in manufacturing, in 10 leading industrial countries:

Sweden Belgium	$9.88 per hour 9.88
Netherlands	9.62
West Germany	9.18_
United States	8.26
Canada	7.54
France	6.90
Italy	6.18
Japan Britain	5.65 4.24
Diliam	4.24

Some of those figures are a bit suspect. You would be justified in doubting the number reported for Italy; the Italians do a large amount of unreported moonlighting at low wages. To add a more subtle qualification, people spend their money differently from one country to another, and governments distribute subsidies differently. The West Germans; for example, do not live quite as well as that high number suggests, nor do the British live quite so badly as you might think from their low one.

But it is the change across the 1960s and 1970s that is particularly revealing. The 1978 figure for Japan is exactly the same, discounting inflation, as the figure for the United States in 1960. The pattern is most visible if we take U.S. workers' compensation for each year as 100, and express other countries' levels in relation to it. The numbers below are not dollars, but percentages of the American average that year:

	1960	1970	1975	1978
United States	100	100	100	100
Canada	80	83	96	91
Sweden	45	71	113	120
West Germany	32	56	99	111
Belgium	31	50	105	120
Netherlands	25	51	104	116
France	31	42	72	84
Britain	31	35	51	51
Italy	24	42	73	75
Japan	10	24	48	68

What you observe here is the evidence of the success of the post-war economic system. established primarily under American and British leadership in the middle and latter 1940s. It was pivoted on one dominant economy - the U.S. economy - and on the dollar. Its purpose was to generate steady economic growth that would provide a solid basis for political democracy. All that has worked brilliantly — so well that the other countries are now too powerful, and the flows of trade too great, to move within a system managed by the United States alone. If you look at the last column above, you will have a clue to help explain why other countries are suddenly able to bid with such unexpected force against American consumers for food and oil. The industrial world has outgrown the past generation's regime, and is moving uncertainly toward a new one that has not yet been invented. Painful and anxious though the transition may be, it is important to remember that it does not result from failure. On the contrary, it is the price of success — the rising productivity and broadly distributed rewards that are reflected in the pay of industrial workers.

Mrs. Gandhi's Return

A great many Indians will be shaken by Mrs. Gandhi's return to politics following her by-election victory, and by the possibility of her return to power . . . She has so far conducted her campaign against the judicial proceedings that have been initiated against her by mobilizing support on the street. This extraparliamentary agitation, often resulting in violence, is damaging to the health of de-mocracy in India. What should be welcomed by all parties in India is that Mrs. Gandhi's victory means that the main opposition will now be focused in Parliament itself.

Her return to politics and the likelihood of the Congress Party uniting behind her also means that India has a chance to develop the two-party system, and thus the possibility of an alternative government, that has eluded the country since independence.

- From the Financial Times (London).

As leader of the opposition in Delhi, In-dira Gandhi certainly has it in her power to seriously embarrass the Janata government. If she succeeds in awakening Prime Minister Desai from his self-centered complacency and forcing his government into belated action her comback may turn out to India's advantage. Whether voters will eventually support her return to the seat of power after everything the country had to endure under the emergency remains an open question.

Gathering of Power

The shah began gathering all power into his hands after his restoration to the throne, thanks in part to the Central Intelligence Agency, back in 1953. In time he came to determine foreign policy in every detail, to hold sway over all the security forces, and to dominate the making of economic and social policy.

For a brief period in the early years of the Kennedy administration the United States pressed him to democratize his regime. One result was the land reform which he later came to claim as his own. But President Johnson, and even more President Nixon, found in him just the kind of ruler they liked, and showered him with U.S. blessings.

By the time President Carter reached office, there was no good alternative except working through the shah. Heavy-handed pressure on him to relax internal security measures proved counterproduc-tive. Indeed, lifting the lid made a major contribution to the troubles that began in January and now threaten to topple the regime.

For the time being, giving maximum support to the shah is the only feasible U.S. policy. The alternatives — military rule or an "Islamic republic" — would yield chaos in a country critical to the world's oil needs.

But if the shah lucks out again, the United States should take its distances. Washington this time ought to insist on slow but sure progress toward a limited monar-chy, and a sharing of power among other persons and institutions.

'Our Man' Fahd

In the case of Prince Fahd, he emerged as the true ruler of Saudi Arabia only after the assassination of King Faisal. Neither President Nixon nor President Ford had occasion to depend on him. But Jimmy Carter made Fahd "our man" in Riyadh for both oil and peace in the Near East.

In the case of oil, Fahd began backing off last year. The sign of the switch was an unceasing flow of mysterious stories about bad weather in the Gulf, low pressure in the oil fields, erosion of the pipes and that sort of thing. They added up to a typically Saudi — that is to say, nonconfrontational — way of any one of the pipes. curbing planned expansion of oil production, and thus preparing the ground for a round of price increas-

As to backing the peace process, Fahd kept saying things that identi-fied him as what the Carter administration is pleased to call "a mod-erate Arab." But when the test came at the recent Baghdad summit, he buckled. His presence there, his support of a resolution condemning the Camp David accords between Israel and Egypt, and his increased financial backing for Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization all show that, in words used by President Sadat in an interview here, Fahd has "gone over to the other side."

China-Japan Pact: Imagining a Change

By William Pfaff

PARIS — No one seems able to be calm about China. Foreign reactions to the country have long been overwrought. In the 19th century it was the British merchant who was dazzled by "the chimera of inexhaustible trade" (quoting the Indian historian, K.M. Panikkar). Today's industrial salesmen from Japan have much the same vision and they too may be disappointed. and they too may be disappointed. Communist China remains an un-stable and unreliable society, dis-

Moscow Reaction

That treaty has provoked a more violent reaction in Moscow, where it is called a "historic mistake" on Japan's part and officials talk darkly of Russia's "encirclement." In Western Europe, some commenta-tors see in the treaty the possibility of reversed world power balance and even the remification of Germany and of Europe. Their argument is that the Chinese-Japanese agreement will force the Soviet Un-ion "to play the German card." That is, the Russians would offer German unification in exchange for Germany's neutralization and other Western security guarantees. Both Le Monde and the Times of London have asked "why else?" would Moscow have nominated to its Bonn embassy a high-powered member of the Central Committee, A.M. Semionov, who has been leading the Soviet delegation to the SALT talks. Another normally sensible newspaper, Le Figaro in Paris, makes the improbable claim that there are secret military clauses in the Chinese-Japanese treaty.

It is hard to see why the treaty should provoke this much drama. Certainly it is hard to see why the Soviet Union should be led by Chinese-Japanese cooperation into the extraordinary conclusion that it can protect itself from a strength-ened China in the East by re-estab-lishing a united Germany in the West. It probably is true that the rationality of Soviet policy-making ble has changed. The real align-rationality of Soviet policy-making can protect itself from a strength-ened China in the East by re-estab-lishing a united Germany in the is easy to overestimate, but Soviet ments of world power and interest caution can nearly always be relied are as they were. What is charged

There is good reason for the Soviet Union to worry about an eventually strengthened China, but it nonetheless will be a very tong time before China possesses a serious offensive military capability. China's size and population give it an unquestionable ability to defend against invasion. But this kind of strength is not easy to project strength is not easy to project abroad — even if foreign military adventures were much in historical adventures were inten in instonean character for the Chinese. There is certainly a Chinese nuclear force, but again this is deterrent and defensive. And China's industry and technology will remain very weak for the foreseeable future. Japan's trade notwithstanding.

Treaties do not change such realities, nor do they alter the funda-mental issues of national relation-ships. China and the Soviet Union are enemies because Russia holds territory China claims and because the two governments put forward rival versions of Marxism. But Japan has nothing to gain from any.
Chinese victory over the Soviet Union, and ought to be in positive dread of a Soviet victory over Chi-na. The Japanese national interest is to stay out of it.

What this treaty has done is make a psychological change in world affairs. And there is an un-doubted racialist factor in the world's reaction. Vast China, that extraordinary civilization, always seductive to outsiders, nonetheless has always included an element of menace as well. A half century ago it was common to hear blunt talk about the "yellow peril." China's threat recently has been more respectably expressed in the language of "blue ants," backyard blast-furnaces, and falling Asian dominoes. Attitudes toward Japan have gone through even sharper shifts since the Japanese made their abrupt entrance upon world atten-tion in 1904 by falling upon Port Arthur and then sinking the entire Russian fleet in a day in the Tsushima Straits. Lately we have been agitated by "Japan Incorporated's" uncheckable exports and inpenetrable headers. able home market.

Imaginary Change

Now these two countries, China and Japan, about whom the rest of us have always been ambivalent and a little fearful, declare their friendship and announce important plans for industrial cooperation. To upon. This generation of Soviet is in our imaginations.

Time is not on the side of an arms limitation agreement. President Brezhnev of the Soviet Union is not in good health, and while he has not been willing to meet President Carter's terms for arms control, he has gone further toward a compromise than his successors are likely to go.

It is the history of these transitions of power in the Soviet Union that the military officials tend to dominate policy until the new leaders establish their anthority much later on. In short, Brezhnev has longer memories of the suffering of war than his successors are likely to have, and any long delay in reach-ing an arms compromise is likely to make the problem even more difficult and expensive later on. Also, the arrival of a new and more conservative Congress in Washington does not necessarily retard the prospects for a comprehensive agreement to limit the military budgets of both the United States and the Soviet Union.

On the contrary, it raises the opportunity to explore the possibility of a major reduction in the defense budgets of both countries. It is true that a more conservative Congress in Washington will probably favor cutting everything but defense, but at the same time, the new Congress might respond to any genuine, confirmable, and secure compromise that could lower the level of military expenditures in the interest of both countries.

This is not merely a military question. It involves serious ques-tions of domestic and foreign policy on both sides. If there is no agreement on a SALT-2 treaty, the arms race will go on at ever-increasing cost. And the higher it goes, the harder it will be for Washington to control the inflation, to protect the dollar, or to meet the other, more immediate, demands for aid to bring about a peaceful settlement in the Middle East and elsewhere.

It used to be the argument of the Republican conservatives that the shield of the republic was a sound economy and a confident and pros-perous people at home. But that confidence is being eroded by inflation, which is damaging the author-ity and prestige of the United

In short, as Carter, Secretary of State Cyrus Vance and Zbigniew Brzezinski have been trying to tell the Soviet ambassador here, Anatoly Dobrynin, there is an opportuni-ty now for a fair and equal reduc-tion of arms and costs, which would benefit not only both countries but the rest of the world

Dobrynin, who has his observers on Capitol Hill and who reads the election returns, probably gets the point. The question is whether his colleagues in Moscow will see the election as an opportunity or as a

Currently being syndicated is $392 million in two seven-year loans for Sonatrach, the state oil agency. The financing is part of a $667-million package being arranged to finance exports from Canada. The Canadian Export Development Corp. is supplying $275 million for 14 years at a fixed rate of 81/2 percent. The rest is being financed in the Euromarket. Banks are being invited to participate in a $250-million loan carrying a spread of 1% percent over the London interbank offered rate (Libor) which is guaranteed by the Algerian Development Bank. Algeria has already borrowed seven-year funds at finer terms (with the margin over Libor starting at 1/2 for three years), but bankers explain that the terms were set some months ago. Banks that participate in this loan will be given the option to participate on a pro-rata basis in a $142-million loan that is guaranteed by the Canadian export agency and thus is considered a Canadian risk. The gross margin on this loan is also 1% percent over Libor. But participating banks will net only % over Libor for four years and % over for the final three years with the remainder going to the export agency for having issued its

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK, Nov. 12 (NYT) — There's an old saying in Wall Street that runs like this: "When the market's going up, who needs analysts? When the market's going down, who needs stocks?"

What the market certainly doesn't need these days is an unpleasant surprise. But that's precisely what it got early last week when General Motors cut its year-end dividend payment to $2.50 a share from the record $3.25 a share declared in 1977. On Tuesday, GM fell nearly 2 points to sell at its lowest price since 1975, and the entire market felt the

As a result, the Dow Jones industrial average sank nearly 15 points that same day in its biggest tumble since the 19-point plunge in the session of the last month carried it $10 an Oct. 31. For many investors, it was an uncomfortable reminder of what ounce higher for the January fuhappened in late July, 1977. At that time, Bethlehem Steel cut its dividend in half in a surprise move and the stock market "headed south" in a hurry.

For the latest week, the Dow dropped 16.02 points, to finish at 807.09.

This decline virtually wiped out the 17-point upswing of the previous week, when stock prices were bolstered by administration steps to defend the dollar in foreign-exchange dealings. The pace of trading, meanwhile, slowed markedly on the New York Stock Exchange. Volume amounted to just 109.5 million shares, compared with 219.67 million during the preceding week. So what does it all mean for the stock market and its most closely watched indicator, the Dow? After all, despite its downswing, the Dow did hold fast last week at the 800 mark that some observers believe is a

In Philadelphia, Charles O'Hay, chairman of the investment policy committee for Butcher & Singer Inc., was a model of forecasting specifici-"We're seeing another step down in the Dow, and my readings indicate bottom between 750 and 760 around Nov. 20," he said.

Then I expect a rally in December and January carrying the industrial efforts were wearing thin in the average to the 825-850 area. Our forecast is for the prime lending rate to metals markets, which were the climb as high as 12 or 13 percent between April and July of 1979. That first to react.

Official estimates of the Soviet Union's cereal-grain crop this year were increased last week from 220 million metric tons to 230 million, and the agriculture department also raised its assessment of the Australian wheat crop. Shearson Hayden Stone Inc., a brokerage firm, estimated Brazilian soybean planting at 6 percent higher this year than last, potentially raising the 1979 crop size by 44 percent over 1978's drought-diminished yield.

But export news helped balance those bearish reports, as South Ko-rea bought 520,000 tons of U.S. corn and the government con-firmed a 25,400-ton sale of soy-beans to China — a small amount in international trade, but sufficient to fuel dealers' persistent hopes of increased soybean sales to that nation. Also, soybean processing reached record levels, according to an industry report.

Platinum, whose price leaps in tures contract, lost $29 for January deliveries last week on the Nev York Mercantile Exchange.

"It's a good example of popular delusions and the madness of crowds," said one analyst of the intense speculative interest that combined with reports of rising industrial demand to push futures prices far above cash market bids.

ASK FOR IT EVERY DAY. EVERYWHERE YOU GO.

International Herald Tribune

I THINK WE CAN COME TO A DECISION RIGHT NOW. WE'LL SEND YOU 500 IN ASSORTED COLORS. YES? WHICH COLOR DON'T YOU WANT? HMM... YOU REALIZE THAT MEANS WE'LL HAVE TO REPACKAGE .... ADDS TO OUR COST. YES. WELL, LOOK DOWN THE COLUMN THAT SAYS 'BROKEN PACKAGES', UH-HUH,...TOO HIGH? TELL YOU WHAT, SINCE IT'S A QUANTITY order, I'm Willing to Split the difference OVER THE PRICE ORIGINALLY QUOTED. YES ... OKAY YOU'LL GET ALL THE COLORS. EXCEPT THE BLUE, WELL, WHEN I TALKED TO YOUR MR. PETRIE HE SAID IT WAS ALL RIGHT, OH YES, I TALKED TO HIM. SAID YOU HAVE ENOUGH IN STOCK. ENOUGH TO HOLD YOU FOR AWHILE, SAID TO TELL YOU IF YOU HAD ANY DOUBTS, UH-HUH. OH, OF COURSE, YOU'RE IN A BIND? WE'LL GET THAT ORDER WE HAVE TONIGHT, RIGHT. ON A PLANE THANK YOU, WORK TO DO! FETCH

Do you need details...a decision right now...give-and-take?

Then it's the telephone to the U.S.A.

You won't wait hours-or even overnight-for an answer as you must with other means of communications. Right on the spot you can explore, persuade, explain-and close the sale. The cost isn't much when you consider the results.

Bell System

Our network can reach all four corners. Our name may imply we're Belgian, but our network says we're international.

It says we have the ability to service clients not just through 1060 branches in Belgium, but also through our subsidiaries, affiliated and associated banks. As well as through representative offices in major business centers, stretching from Rio to Tokyo.

Why we sometimes open our ears instead of another office.

We think that sometimes it can be just as efficient to rely on our local correspondents. We also have other ears at work for you through our membership in SFE and Associated Banks of Europe (ABECOR). This is what gives us the local touch around the world. So we can give you the insider's edge wherever you do business.

We're the international bank with the face-to-face philosophy.

We try to know a client as a person, not just as a signature. We try to learn his business as well as our own. Taking time to learn his language, instead of expecting him to speak "bankese." And taking time to tailor specific answers to his specific financial problems.

Because we think that an individual approach to each client - to his business, to his needs - is what really makes a bank big. Not simply its big international network.

er, "means compromise. But the borrower is either repaying the loan or not, there is nothing to compro-mise about." Some banks have refused to join the syndicate be-cause of this. Others, which have accepted, express misgivings that this will encourage other borrowers to demand such a clause in their contracts. They explain that have agreed as an explicit favor to Renault.

Also in the wings is a $100-million, eight-year loan for Banque Ex-terieure d'Algerie that is expected to carry a margin of 1½ percent over Libor for four years and 1½ percent in the final four years. A number of bankers argue that the terms are too low, but the managers say the loan is to be syndicated among a small group of banks having close correspondent relations with the Algerian bank.

Foreign Bonds

The Province of Quebec is syndicating a 10-year loan of $300 million, offering to pay % percent over Libor for the first two years and % percent over for the final eight years. Bankers were enthusi-astic about the terms but were at a loss to explain why Quebec is paying more for its 10-year money than the Soviet Union's Foreign Trade Bank (which is seeking $250 million at % percent over Libor throughout). throughout).

With bankers reportedly falling non-government-guaranteed debt is falling. Union Electrica, an electric utility, is seeking $75 million for 10 years with the spread starting at % percent over Libor for eight years and % over Libor for the final two years. Previous non-guaranteed loans for 10 years were pegged at 1 percent over Libor.

Lumber futures on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were lower in most contract months, reflecting a U.S. Department of Commerce forecast of a 17-percent drop in 1979 housing starts. Plywood futures prices were stronger, with the nearby months in both commodities showing price gains because futures prices have been lower recently than cash market prices.

On Chicago's International Monetary Market, futures con-tracts in the Swiss franc continued to decline as speculative interest waned on the dollar's strength. The yen and the mark, also useful as hedges against a declining dollar but influenced more heavily than the Swiss franc by factors other than pure speculative interest, showed slight gains.

Also in Chicago, cattle futures were .82 cents a pound lower for the December delivery, closing at 53.45 cents, more than 5 cents be-low the season's high. Weak beef demand as the Thanksgiving season approaches, and correspondingly lower cash prices for carcass beef, were the main factors, ana-

Live hog futures gained 1.22 cents a pound to close at 51.32 cents for the November delivery. Trader expectations of increas demand for pork, combined with only slight increases in the numbers of hogs marketed for slaughter, pushed prices higher, analysts said. Pork-belly futures gained a cent a pound for the February delivery, pushing futures prices substantially higher than cash-market levels. On the New York Cocoa Exchange, prices rose by 4.8 cents a pound for the December delivery, partly on reports of civil unrest in Ghana, the world's major cocoa producer. Also, reports that Hershey Foods Corp. will make its standard chocolate bars .15 ounce larger fueled traders' expectations of greater demand for cocoa.

Young Award winner in 1977, became disenchanted and demanded a trade after he was relegated to backup status in the bulipen last season. He got his wish when the Yankees dealt him, catcher Mike Heath, pitchers Larry McCall and Dave Rajsich and utility infielder Domingo Ramos to Texas for cen-ter fielder Juan Beniquez, pitchers Dave Righetti, Paul Mirabella and Mike Griffin and outfielder Greg Jemison. The Rangers also received an undisclosed amount of cash believed to be around $400,000.

this year. He was 5-5 as a starter.
"We're in love with Righetti," said the Yankee president, Al Rosen, at a news conference an-nouncing the trade. "He's a left-handed power pitcher and we've had great reports on him. One of our scouts said he thinks he's another Ron Guidry. I don't think that's possible, but it's nice to know he's considered in that class."

Management's View

"Sparky seemed elated," Rosen said. "He hopes they work his butt off. That's what he wants. He is one of the greatest left-handed relief pitchers the game has ever known.

He's a great competitor."

In order for the Yankees to trade Lyle, they had to get his consent since he has been in the major leagues for 10 seasons with more than five spent with the Yanks. Lyle, 34, had said he would not agree to the trade unless his contract terms were met, but Rosen said that to his knowledge Lyle is satisfied with the offer made by

Brad Corbett, Texas' owner. As Lyle feared when the Yankees signed free agent Rich Gossage for $2.75 million last year, there was not enough work for both late-inning relievers. The Yankees elected to rely on the hard-throwing Gossage and, as third baseman Graig Nettles aptly put it, "Lyle went from Cy Young to sayonara." In 1976, Lyle became the first relief pitcher in American League history to win the Cy Young Award. After resolving a contract dispute with the Yankees that resulted in a three-year, $350,000

Hagar "deliberately wanted me to hit him. His questions got bad at the end. He threatened to fight me. That's when I hit him." Hagar, who was treated and re-

The interview was conducted in a bar at the Centennial Coliseum during halftime of the Reno Bighorns' opening game against the Las Vegas Dealers in the Western Basketball Association. Martin, a friend of Bill Musselman, the Bighorn coach, was in town to promote the new team's first game.

for international finance.

As one of the leading banks in Southwest Germany, Badische Kommunale Landesbank has the resources and ilexibility to select the most suitable financing alternatives for its clients.

After more than 60 years of refining our skills to meet the demands for flexibility of German and international companies at home and abroad, we offer a full range of streamlined services for financing international trade. For example - short to long-term loans, buyers' and setters' credits; documentary payments and collections; letters of credit; discounting of foreign bills; foreign exchange hedging facilities.

We operate wholly-owned subsidiaries in Luxembourg and Zurich. Badische Kommunale Landesbank International S.A. in Luxembourg with direct access to the Euromarkets, specializes in roll-over credits, syndicated loans, money market and foreign exchange dealing, and Eurobond trading.

Forfaitierung und Finanz AG in Zurich adds further dimensions to our international capabilities, concentrating on non-recourse financing (a torfait), short and medium-term trade financing, and other specialized financial services.

We are a regional universal bank, headquartered in Mannheim (with total assets of DM 16.4 billion). As central bank of 69 Sparkassen in Baden, we are linked to Germany's powerful network of savings banks. We are also authorized to issue our own bearer bonds, assuring a broad source of funds. Flexibility and the proven ability to match available alternatives with client needs are among our major strengths. For complete

THE STORIES OF JOHN CHEEVER By John Cheever. Alfred A. Knopf. 693 pp. $15.

Reviewed by John Leonard

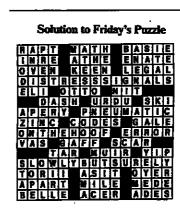

TOHN CHEEVER begins one of the 61 stories in this splendid collection this way: "I would not want to be one of those writers who begins each morning by exclaiming. O Gogol, O Chekhov, O Thack-eray and Dickens, what would you have made of a bomb shelter ornamented with four plaster-of-Paris ducks, a birdbath, and three composition gnomes with long beards and red mobcaps? As I say, I wouldn't want to begin a day like this, but I often wonder what the dead would have done."

The point, of course, is that Cheever — our Chekhov and per-haps our Turgenev — has begun each morning of every short story for the last 30 years with some such exclamation. The wiles of art confront a mundane absurdity, and are momentarily confounded. Gestures meant to be heroic seem instead to hang at half-staff in dead air. How are we to rescue our singularity, much less our dignity, from these old bones, these failures of will?

His people for the most part are upper-middle-class WASPs, usually at the end of their tether - having run out of luck or charm or money or stamina - and fatally clumsy His obsessions are memory and desire, women, adultery, gin, drowning, brothers, tenderness, borders, imprisonment, the protection of children, wood smoke, empty-churches. His craft is a kind of salvage: Decency at an impasse is still allowed its lyric yawp; losers are permitted to be brave; against all that is disappointing and sinis-

Dark Stories

There has always been plenty of darkness in his stories, as malign chance or indifferent history catches up with his characters. Men drown, and crack up cars, and fall off mountains, and break their necks on ski tows. Children eat ant poison. Fifteen-year-old prodigies commit suicide. A wife shoots her husband as he is about to hurdle the living room couch. Someone is devoured by his own dogs. The police arrive much more often than we have any right to expect in Shady Hill. St. Botolphs and Bullet water, the smoke of burning hemlock, and the breasts of women."

And: "My flight was announced, and I sailed through the caves of heaven back to the city of light."

And: "Remembering the cold on her skin and the whiteness of the snow and stealth of the wolves, she wondered why the good God had opened up so many choices and made life so strange and diverse." Finally: "Then it is dark; it is night where kings in golden suits ride elephants over the mountains. Burnt-Out People But there are no kings and no sanctuaries. Critics have complained that Cheever's characters are negligible, peripheral, burns out, historical discards, their sine. turned to nostalgia. Some of the complaint is simply class animus. Where, we are asked, are the Jethor, for that matter, the Armenia. It think it's just as well that he stong to what he knows because no lade. to what he knows, because nolody

Against this grain of darkness the dreams persist: "that sense of sanctuary that is the essence of love," "the perfumes of life: sea knows it better and he isn't very persuasive on, say, farmhands and janitors and Italians and (vide "Falconer") homosexual heroin addicts. More to the point, his account of the decline of his social class — a class no better and no worse than any other - is as deft and luminous as the accounts of Waugh and Proust. He is also more charitable than Waugh and Proust combined, and if the quality of mercy is disabling to a writer, we might as well stop reading anything other than agitprop. By writing about any of us, Cheever writes about all of us, our ethical concerns and our failures of nerve, our experience of the discrepancies and our shred of honor. Buffeted by gusts of chance, of evil, his characters are unmoored. They consult themselves, as if they were compasses. Surely, inside their mess of memory and desire, there is a decent pole, toward which the knowing needle swings and points. Something transcendent is asked of them: an extravagance, a surprise, a rhapsody, a proof.

They come back with apples and snow. We must make do. Taste, color, texture and dream are clues. The constants I look for in this sometimes dated paraphernalia," Cheever tells us in a preface, "are a love of light and a determination to trace some moral chain of being." It would be meaningless and impudent to commend one or another story in a volume that is not merely the publishing event of the season but a grand occasion in English literature. For whatever the opinion is worth, John Cheever is my favorite writer.

The comeback victory pushed Houston's record to 7-4 and snapped New England's sevengame winning streak, leaving the Pats at 8-3.

New England rolled to a 23-7 halftime lead on three field goals by David Posey and touchdown runs of 3 and 7 yards by Horace Ivory and quarterback Steve Gro-

Three of the scores were set up by Houston fumbles as the Oilers failed to muster much of an offense in the first 30 minutes. Houston's lone first-half score came on an 8-yard run by Rob Carpenter who also scored on a 1-yard vault in the third quarter. Houston's other touchdown came on a I-yard plunge by Earl Campbell in the fourth quarter. Kicker Toni Fritsch missed the last two Houston extra points.

New England played a nearly flawless first half, scoring the first five times it had the ball. Posey had field goals of 32, 34 and 37 yards. Ivory's run was a dart up the mid-dle and Grogan scored on a bootleg around left end.

At University Park, Pa., Matt Bahr rescued a sluggish Penn State offense with four field goals to tie an NCAA career record and carry the Nittany Lions to a come-frombehind 19-10 victory over North Carolina State.

Three of Bahr's field goals kicks of 32, 37 and 30 yards - enabled Penn State to come back from a 7-3 halftime_deficit. A 43yard touchdown punt return by Matt Suhey with 3:38 to play sealed the Lions' 10th straight victory of the season and 18th in a row over two years - longest in the nation among major colleges.

The Cougars and the Longhorns fought to a scoreless tie in the first half and produced only one scoring threat between them.

But on Houston's first possession of the second half Davis broke for a 29-yard gain — his longest run of the year — to put some fuel in the Cougars' attack. Moments later Davis hit Jurgajtis with a 25-yard pass that set up a 1-yard scoring run by Emmett King. Another catch by Jurgajtis of 21 yards set up a 33-yard field goal by Kenny Hat-field on the final play of the third quarter.

Syracuse's winning points came a a 30-yard field goal by Jacobs with 2:48 left to play. ("a pots and pans man," as they say in the trade), amassing great sheaves of facts; instead, he has chosen as much to evoke history as to record it - and with a prose so energetic that his subjects, especially Robert Kennedy, seem somehow realer, if not larger, than life.

And now, at 61, Schlesinger's waiting for the phoenix to begin to rise again.

Of course, Schlesinger has always been a house outsider. He was two years younger than his classmates at Exeter, and you can still see a cheery brashness in his small face. He published his undergraduate thesis, graduated summa cum laude from Harvard, and went on to become a member of the prestigious Society of Fellows and a Henry Fellow at Cambridge.

Soother

In 1945, he set the American history world on its ear with "The Age of Jackson," which examined the hitherto neglected early 19th century - and claimed that the vitality of Jacksonian times came more from the cities and intellectuals than from frontiersmen. It won him a Pulitzer Prize; he would win another for his book on John Kennedy, "A Thousand Days." In 1949 he published "The Vital Center," which helped define Cold War liberalism. He helped found Americans for Democratic Action, and kept a steady stream of liberal public figures and academicians moving through his house in Cambridge.

When John Kennedy needed to preserve his ties to the Adlai Stevenson wing of the party while at the same time trying to capture its more conservative dements, Schlesinger became the natural envoy and soother. But his peers will tell you that those who are not his peers can sometimes find him abrasive. He mulls that one over:

"Before I became old and mellow," he allows, "I was young and stated my opinions rather forcefully perhaps."

But then, outspoken outsiders are just what "some people want to have around them," Schlesinger says. "Roosevelt liked to have people who gave him different viewpoints. Some politicians are not threatened by intellectuals. They have a great personal security.'

Isn't such a security generally the perquisite of an aristocracy - the Roosevelts, Stevensons and Kennedys?

'No!'

"Kennedy had a very open White House." Schlesinger admits. "It was not channeled or compartmentalized. I can understand why people on the organizational charts would feel threatened by people with a very casual access to the president, but a sensible president does not let himself become a prisoner of the

Was there ever a great president who did not run the sort of White House a Schlesinger could be welcomed in?

The problem here is that his relationships to both Kennedys were founded more on mutual intuitions than on definable assignments, bringing him closer to the history he wrote than some other, higher-placed aides.

But Schlesinger isn't worried:
'As Oscar Wilde said, The one duty we owe to history is to rewrite it.' I say things as I see them. History can be a high-risk occupation. But it's all in the Schlesinger is a confident man enough so that he never bothered to get a Ph.D or even a master's degree. He's one of the fastest pens in the East, turning out a constant rush of book and movie reviews (the latter over the years for Vogue and the Sat-urday Review), dissents, attacks, essays and appeals.

He lives in New York, where he's Albert Schweitzer Professor of the Humanities at City University. He plays tennis - "a good cross-court shot, with topspin," he says. He is much sought-after as a dinner partner.

Even a recurring nightmare is tinged with success: "You know the dream people have that they're back in school and they have an exam the next day and they haven't studied for it? I have exactly the reverse: I'm a professor giving an exam or a lecture and I haven't prepared

Ex-Astronaut Armstrong PEOPLE: Has Finger Reimplanted

Former U.S. astronaut Neil Arm strong, the first man to walk on the moon, was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday after surgeons reimplanted his severed left ring finger. Armstrong's finger was severed Friday when he jumped off a truck at his suburban Cincinnati home and his wedding band caught on a barn door. Officials at Jewish Hospital said that it would be at least Thursday before the success of the operation could be deter-mined, but that the blood supply to the finger appeared to have been restored. Armstrong, 48, was civil-ian commander of the three-man Apollo 11 crew when he walked on the lunar surface on July 20, 1969. He teaches aerospace engineering at the University of Cincinnati where he heads the department of engineering and medicine.

Prince Charles cannot complain about not having any weight to throw around. The heir to the British throne wanted good news and he got it. Earlier this year, at an award of prizes to newspaper, the prince complained that newspapers always print bad news. So, yester-day, the Sunday Times of London front-paged a column of good news. The 31 items might not sell many newspapers, though. Samples: 12,200 Britons were born last week and 8,000 couples were married. Shrimp, goldfish and salmon are multiplying in the Thames River. The British Rail network had 88 percent of its expresses arriving within 10 minutes of schedule. The House of Commons resumed its 306th Parliament since 1213. The cereal harvest is a record and the suicide death rate is dropping. A girl, 13, was given permission to play rugby. The newspaper added a footnote: "Sorry about the bad news that has crept into other parts of this page, notably the story about strikes, but that's life, that's Prince Rainier of Monaco has won a libel judgment against the Belgian satirical magazine Pan. A civil court in Brussels has ordered the magazine to pay 100,000 Belgian francs ($3,381) to the prince and 50,000 Belgian francs ($1,691) to his daughter, Princess Caroline, 21. The weekly magazine made humorous comments about Prince Rainier's announced intention to sue Brazilian millionaire Francisco Scarpa, who had made uncomplimentary comments about the princess in a 1976 interview. The prince sued, but the charges against the Brazilian were dropped after he apologized for his remarks.

The two Britons whose research permitted conception of the first baby outside the womb will get their own laboratory near Cambridge to help women with infertility problems. Dr. Patrick Steptoe, a gynecologist, and Dr. Robert Edwards, a physiologist, whose technique bypasses the fallopian tubes, will be set up in a clinic by Associated Newspapers, which owns The London Mail, making it possible for the researchers to continue their work in England. They had received many offers to work abroad. A spokesman for the com-pany said it had applied for local government permission to establish a fertility clinic at a 40-room Tudor mansion on 25 acres.

Soviet women are weeping for Dean Reed, the U.S. singer impris-oned on a trespassing charge after he took part in a farmers' demon stration in Delano, Minn., the Soviet Union's youth newspaper says, Komsomolskaya Pravda yesterday printed a large photograph of Reed, whose protest songs are little known in the United States. Since his arrest Oct. 31, the Soviet press has focused Reed in its humanrights counterattack alleging lack of freedom in the United States. Reed and several other demonstrators refused to pay $300 bail; he was released on personal recognizance. Reed has been popular in the Soviet Union since the 1960s, when he began touring and contributing some royalties to the Soviet Peace Fund. Earlier this year, the Soviet Peace Committee awarded him its peace champion medal.
